I'll keep this brief.

We are currently leaders in renewable energy in Australia, but we can and should do more. Projects like a solar thermal plant would bring expertise from around the world and keep our best and brightest here in Australia. We have the potential to cement South Australia as THE world leader in renewable energy technology, developing a manufacturing industry around this.

The world is changing, and we should strive not just to keep up with the change, but to lead it.

Yours sincerely,
Michael Dello-Iacovo
