SOUTH AUSTRALIA'S CLIMATE CHANGE STRATEGY

Submission from the Australian Youth Climate
Coalition and the Seed Indigenous Youth
Climate Network

ABSTRACT

The AYCC and Seed have 8 key recommendations for the SA Government in their climate change strategy. As young people, we are key stakeholders in this consultation because our generation will inherit the consequences of decisions made today.

8 Ways to Make South Australia Cleaner and Fairer, a submission from the AYCC and Seed.

Global warming is a huge challenge to South Australia, especially young people who will inherit the consequences of the decisions made today. Through strong action on global warming, South Australia has the opportunity to create a cleaner, fairer, job-rich state.

The Australian Youth Climate Coalition (AYCC) and Seed Indigenous Youth Climate Network want to see a just transition to a cleaner, fairer, job-rich South Australia that respects the rights of Aboriginal people, supports workers to transition from polluting industries into clean jobs, gives fair access to the clean economy to all, and leaves young people to inherit a safer, cleaner climate.

We welcome the opportunity to make this submission to the South Australian Government's climate change strategy and hope the State Government continues to build on its leadership on climate change by implementing a strategy backed by strong policy.

The AYCC and Seed recommend the following 8 ways the South Australian Government can make South Australia cleaner and fairer:

1. Make solar thermal with storage in Port Augusta happen, creating new jobs for Port Augusta;
2. A roadmap to 100% renewable energy ensuring strong community co-benefits for Aboriginal people, local jobs and support for community owned renewable energy;
3. Fair access to solar and energy efficiency for all, with targeted support for Aboriginal people, especially for community-owned energy, low-income social housing and renters;
4. Set clear, enforceable carbon pollution reduction targets including net carbon zero on 1990 levels by 2050 at the latest, and set midway targets of 60% by 2025 and 80% by 2030;
5. Strengthen the right of Aboriginal communities to say yes or no to resource extraction on their land and sea country with free, prior and informed consent by enshrining and fully implementing the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People in South Australia;
6. Commit to a moratorium and phase out of fossil fuel exploration in South Australia, including stopping oil drilling in the Great Australian Bight and shale gas exploration in the South East as priorities;

7. Targeted support to communities affected by the changing climate, especially Aboriginal communities, people of low income, the elderly, and people in drought affected areas; and
8. Create a roadmap for clean jobs with a focus on renewable energy, public transport, energy efficiency, manufacturing, social services and targeted support for workers and communities currently reliant on jobs in polluting industries.

The AYCC represents thousands of young people in South Australia and the nation and are committed to building a generation-wide movement for climate justice alongside the Seed Indigenous Youth Climate Network.

The AYCC and Seed recognise South Australia's existing leadership on climate change but also the opportunity for the SA Government to drive further action to make South Australia cleaner and fairer. As an organisation focused on climate justice, the AYCC alongside Seed not only supports efforts to reduce emissions in line with the science to avoid the worst impacts of dangerous global warming, but ensuring that the future society built from action on climate change is just and equitable.

To us, this means ensuring the way we act on climate change ensures those on the frontlines of the impacts of change are supported and also benefit from the solutions. It is with this in mind that the AYCC and Seed have made our submission to this strategy to offer ways that the SA Government can not only ensure we reduce pollution but also ensure we create a cleaner and fairer society for all.

The AYCC has played a large role in supporting action on climate change in South Australia, specifically working with the Port Augusta community and the Repower Port Augusta Alliance for solar thermal in Port Augusta for the last 4 years. We will continue to do this alongside the newly formed Seed Indigenous Youth Climate Network. Through the consultation on this strategy, the AYCC and Seed have engaged our membership with 2097 people signing on to support our '8 Ways to Make South Australia Cleaner and Fairer', encouraging our members to make their own submissions, and our volunteers holding 6 events across South Australia to engage the community on this opportunity to engage with the state government on action on climate change.

Please find below an explanation of how our suggestions to make SA cleaner and fairer can not only reduce carbon pollution but also create new jobs and help address existing inequalities in our state.

1. Make solar thermal with storage in Port Augusta happen, creating new jobs for Port Augusta

The Port Augusta community has long advocated for solar thermal with storage to be built in Port Augusta to create new jobs and a cleaner form of power. The recently announced closure of the Port Augusta coal-fired power stations makes this investment even more urgent.

Building solar thermal in Port Augusta would create badly needed new jobs and give South Australia the opportunity to support manufacturing in a new industry. Heliostat SA is a great example of how a car component manufacturer is transitioning its workforce to manufacture mirrors for solar thermal plants overseas. Building a solar thermal plant in Port Augusta would provide a great opportunity to local manufacturers like Heliostat SA.

The example of the ACT Government's reverse auction as a way to stimulate renewable energy investment provides a great example of how the South Australian Government could make solar thermal with storage happen in Port Augusta. This would also help establish a new emerging technology in Australia that is currently operating or being built in the United States, South America, Africa, Europe and Asia.

We urge the South Australian government to conduct a reverse auction to buy power from a solar thermal plant in Port Augusta which gives priority to a project proponent that:

- Demonstrates co-benefit to the local Aboriginal community;
- Sources jobs locally; and
- Sources manufacturing and materials in South Australia where possible.

2. A roadmap to 100% renewable energy ensuring strong community co-benefits for Aboriginal people, local jobs, and support for community owned renewable energy

South Australia can and should be powered by 100% renewable energy¹. We are already well on the way with 39% of our power coming from renewable energy in 2013/14².

Shifting to 100% renewable power is critical to South Australia tackling dangerous global warming - 75% of South Australia's greenhouse gas pollution came from our electricity in

² Developing a new climate change strategy for South Australia: Overview Consultation Paper, p.12.

2012/13³. It is crucial that the South Australian Government not only sets a goal of 100% renewable energy but also backs it up with a policy to achieve it. With continued uncertain policy at the federal level, the State Government setting policy behind its targets is vital.

The AYCC and Seed believe the following principles should be used to guide a roadmap to 100% renewable energy:

- Ensuring strong co-benefits for Aboriginal people including employment, opportunities for community ownership and funding from the project proponents to self-determined community funds;
- Prioritising investment in areas needing new employment opportunities, like the Upper Spencer Gulf;
- Support for projects that manufacture locally;
- Support for workers in polluting power stations impacted by the transition; and
- Incentives for community-owned energy.

3. Fair access to solar and energy efficiency for all with targeted support for Aboriginal people, especially in community owned energy, low-income social housing and renters

To make the transition to a clean economy fair for everyone, we've got to provide solutions to those who are marginalised in our society. Climate change provides us with a great opportunity to support those people with access to cheap clean energy, options for community-owned renewable projects and energy efficiency measures.

We recommend that the State Government upgrade social housing to be more energy efficient and have solar as well as giving access to solar in Aboriginal communities through targeted measures and put in place policies to make it easier for renters to go solar.

4. Set clear, enforceable carbon pollution reduction targets including net carbon zero on 1990 levels by 2050 at the latest, and set midway targets of 60% by 2025 and 80% by 2030

The South Australian Government should set climate targets in line with keeping dangerous global warming to 1.5 degrees. Doing this requires both long term and mid-term targets to hold governments accountable and allow time to plan our state's transition.

We recommend the State Government sets the following targets:

- Net carbon zero by 2050;
- 60% reductions on 1990 levels by 2025;

³ Developing a new climate change strategy for South Australia: Reduce Consultation Paper, p. 4.

- and 80% reductions on 1990 levels by 2030.

5. Strengthen the right of Aboriginal communities to say yes or no to resource extraction on their land and sea country with free, prior and informed consent by enshrining and fully implementing the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People in South Australia

Indigenous people across the world, and in Australia are often the first to feel the impacts of climate change and yet, did the least to cause it. From heat waves to water shortages, to loss of sacred sites to coastal erosion - the impacts of global warming are hurting Aboriginal people in SA.

Indigenous peoples have looked after this country sustainably for tens of thousands of years, and caring for country is deeply connected to heritage and culture. Not only do non-Indigenous Australians have a lot to learn from Indigenous peoples, but we must respect their right to say yes or no to extractive projects on their country. Under Article 26 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People, "Indigenous peoples have the right to own, use, develop and control the lands, territories and resources that they possess by reason of traditional ownership or other traditional occupation or use, as well as those which they have otherwise acquired."

Seed and AYCC call for a commitment from the SA Government to enshrine this right in legislation in regards to extraction projects on Indigenous land.

6. Commit to a moratorium and phase out of fossil fuel exploration in South Australia, including stopping oil drilling in the Great Australian Bight and shale gas exploration in the South East as priorities.

In a carbon constrained world, scientists tell us that the vast majority of known fossil fuel reserves must stay underground to avoid reaching 2 degrees of dangerous global warming⁴. That's why you can't have a climate change policy without addressing the source of warming - fossil fuels.

Drilling for oil in the Great Australian Bight would not only contribute to dangerous global warming, but would risk an important ocean ecosystem and whale breeding area. For years a local campaign to stop this drilling from going ahead has called on this government to rule it out.

⁴ The Climate Council, "Unburnable Carbon: Why We Need to Leave Fossil Fuels In the Ground", 2015.

Likewise, the extraction of coal seam gas in the South East puts our climate at risk with fugitive emissions, and destroys some of this state's most prime agricultural land. Communities across the southeast have “locked the gate” to the developers, to protect our food bowl.

We call on the SA government to put a moratorium on new fossil fuel projects in the state so that future generations can enjoy a safe climate, local food and our wonderful marine ecosystems, just like we have.

7. Targeted support to communities affected by the changing climate, especially Aboriginal communities, people of low income, the elderly and people in drought affected areas.

Increasing heatwaves and bushfires show South Australia is already feeling the impacts of global warming. As well as investing in a just transition to a clean economy it's critical the South Australian Government works with communities, especially the most marginalised, to deal with the impacts of global warming. Someone struggling to pay their electricity bill is far less likely to use their air conditioner during a heatwave, so ensuring access to cheap clean energy and energy efficiency is one concrete step to help mitigate the impacts of heatwaves on people with low incomes.

We don't have a policy prescription for how the State Government should approach this but we urge the State Government to fully investigate how the most marginalised in our communities can be supported to deal with the impacts of climate change. Practical steps that could help include opening government buildings for shelter during heatwaves, investing in cooling our cities with better planning and regulations, running education in the community before extreme weather events hit, and investing in upgrading housing for people who can't afford it.

8. Create a roadmap for clean jobs with a focus on renewable energy, public transport, energy efficiency, manufacturing, social services and targeted support for workers and communities currently reliant on jobs in polluting industries.

South Australia's climate plan needs to go beyond energy. As well as being the renewable capital of Australia we can be the just transition capital as well to ensure workers aren't left behind in this time of change. It's critical that the State Government invests in retraining of workers, encourages investment in places of industrial change and sets clear plans and targets for industry to mitigate against the risk of unplanned closure. The AYCC and Seed have been working alongside the Australian Services Union to ensure a just transition for workers and communities is central to the climate change strategy and we will continue to build on this work.

The transformation of our transport, buildings, manufacturing, energy, food and agricultural systems all create exciting opportunities for South Australia but we need to plan for to achieve the full benefits of them.

Where possible the State Government should put in place measures to incentivise localised manufacturing in areas like public transport, renewable energy and electric vehicles.

We welcome the opportunity to make this submission and would be happy to discuss any of this further.
